The two-year program offers:

• full-time ICT positions at an AO3 level
• up to 40 full-time ICT positions based in Brisbane and regional Queensland
• work rotations in different roles, work environments and initiatives
• ongoing professional development and training
• coaching and mentoring support
• a range of networking opportunities with ICT professionals
• Professional Development

What We Seek in Students

If you’re keen to taste an ICT career in the Queensland Government you can apply to the program if you:

• hold a degree, graduate diploma, masters or PhD qualification
• graduated from an Australian University in 2008, 2009, 2010, or if you expect to graduate in 2011
• hold Australian citizenship or permanent residency
• are prepared to undergo a security clearance check
• are available to start with the program on 6 February 2012.

Types of Opportunities Available

Where could you find a better a place to launch your ICT career than the Queensland Government ICT Career Graduate Development Program?

Rotations within your agency will give you exposure to a wide range of roles helping you to develop a broad base of experience and skills. The professional development and mentoring provided will help you carve out your own individual career pathway and get you where you want to go.

Graduates involved in this Program will play a vital role in their teams, agency projects and improving the way the Queensland Government does business.
